

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A folded absorbent article for the absorption of body fluids and packaged in a packaging wrapper, wherein the packaging wrapper comprises a container part having an inside and an outside and an opening for taking out the absorbent article, and a lid part having an open position and a closed position. The lid part closes the opening of the container part in the closed position and is releasably attached to the outside of the container part. A distance element is arranged between the lid part and the container part for facilitating opening of the packaging wrapper.